

IAC Announces New Chief Executive Officer

FEBRUARY 29, 2016 | The Intersocietal Accreditation Commission (IAC) announces that their Board of Directors has appointed Mary Lally, MS, CAE, as Chief Executive Officer. As CEO, Ms. Lally succeeds Sandra Katanick, retiring as IAC's founding CEO since 1991.

"We are pleased to announce this appointment," said Raymond Stainback, MD, FACC, FASE, IAC Chairperson. "Mary will bring leadership and clinical expertise to this important role. Having served the IAC for more than eight years, she has demonstrated her skills through programmatic and leadership development. She brings a wealth of perspective and experience."

Bringing to the position a unique combined background of clinical expertise and association management experience, Ms. Lally possesses both a Master's degree in Radiation Health Physics as well as the Certified Association Executive (CAE) credential.

Read the complete press release»